EUROPE'S PACE DELAYED.

RUSSIA'S STUPID GENOA REPLY.

BRITISH VIEWPOINT STATED.

GENOA, May 12.

An authoritative statement of the British view of the Russian note says that the British delegation is examining the note which is very stupid from the view point of Russia's interests and full of idle propaganda, but Britain is not prepared to adopt the view that Europe should therefore be denied peace or the Russian people further consideration in their misery. As far as Russia is concerned help will undoubtedly be delayed and rendered more difficult. Britain is quite prepared to examine the suggestion that the questions of credits, debts and private property should be referred to a mixed commission, though this means that Russia will have to wait longer for credits. The note affords a satisfactory basis for further negotiations with regard to the peace of Europe. To break on the note would mean that the states bordering on Russia might be exposed to the dangers of war and peace might be fundamentally disturbed.

TRUCE PROPOSED.

The British are not prepared to appoint representatives on commissions of enquiry into the questions of credits and property unless a definite reciprocal guarantee is given that no propaganda will be undertaken while the commissions are sitting.

While the pact for non-aggression cannot be concluded until the frontiers of East Europe have been established, the British delegation propose a truce on the basis of the de facto frontiers until the labours of the commissions are concluded and a definite settlement has been reached with regard to Russia.

The British do not consider the Russian note renders further negotiations impossible or puts an end to the conference. They attach importance to the fact that the Russians accepted the third Cannes resolution.

The Italian delegation share these views.

ITALY'S VIEWS.

LATER.

It is stated that the Italian reply to the Russian note is similar to the British.

The French and Belgian delegations are awaiting instructions from their governments. M. Barthou submitted to M. Poincaré suggestions with regard to the appointment of committees of experts to enquire into questions of finance and nationalised property in Russia as the Russians suggested.

INDIAN SEDITION CHARGES.

GANDHI'S SON ARRESTED.

BOMBAY, May 12.

Gandhi's son has been arrested at Allahabad. The Pandit Ramadham, president of the all-India Congress committee, and Kashiram, secretary of the Indore Congress committee have also been arrested.

FATAL AMERICAN RIOTS.

LABOUR LEADERS CHARGED.

CHICAGO, May 13.

Night union leaders, including "Big Tim" Murphy and "Con" Shea have been indicted by a special grand jury in connection with the killing of two policemen.

The authorities do not contend that the leaders actually participated in the killing, but the action of the jury is based on the procedure adopted in the case of the Haymarket riots 36 years ago when the leaders of anarchists were hanged or imprisoned when found guilty of murder in inciting violence and an abetting attack which eight policemen were killed.

GOODS FOR RUSSIA.

DUTCH SYNDICATE'S PURCHASES.

NEW YORK, May 12.

Representatives of the "Nebel" Syndicate (Netherlands Baltic Trading Co.) are here buying manufactures for Russia, especially agricultural machinery, motor cars, and factory equipment.

The Syndicate, which is understood to be composed of about forty manufacturers in Holland, is backed by many millions of dollars. It has arranged with the Soviet Government and the Russian commercial societies to guarantee payments to manufacturers.

COUNTY CRICKET.

SIR PAUL CHATER'S GIFT.

HOW THE $50,000 WILL BE ALLOCATED.

Sir Paul Chater, writes to the China Mail as follows:—

With reference to my promise to donate the sum of $50,000 for the benefit of ex-Servicemen in the Colony after consultation with Major-General Macdonald, Chairman of the Executive Committee of the British Legion, Major A. Murdoch, his successor to that office, and Mr. N. Teesdale Mackintosh, Vice-President of the ex-Active Service Men's Association I have come to the decision that my best course is to place the capital sum—$50,000—in the hands of trustees and to distribute the income therefrom between the two associations in equal sums for the first five years and thereafter in such proportions as may seem desirable until such time as in the opinion of the trustees, ex-Servicemen in the Colony cease to need any material assistance. When that time arrives it will be left to the decision of the trustees in what charitable manner the capital sum shall be disposed of. Hon. Mr. A. Thre are four rooms, which will G. Stephen and Mr. D. G. M. afford accommodation for brilliant Bernard have kindly consented to room reading room, and for music act as trustees, and the capital sum, and each. Sir Paul Chater will be paid over to them at once as furnishing the Club, quite apart from the gift of $50,000.

KINEMA NOTES.

Patrons there may be in this evening's Kowloon Theatre programme but there is also humour aplenty, for the 6-part Reelart picture "All Souls' Eve" featuring Mary Miles Minter as a young Irish girl whose life is beset with tragedy is supplemented by a breezy Larry Semon comedy in which the inimitable comedian plays the part of a grocery clerk. "The Right of Way" Sir Gilbert Parker's master romance of the Canadian North Woods, makes its last appearance at the Coronet Theatre this evening and goes to Kowloon to-morrow, when "The Grocery Clerk" and "All Souls' Eve" come to the Coronet.

I may add, in conclusion, that I have no doubt that when the War Memorial Nursing Home is erected some provision will be made for ex-Servicemen in needy circumstances. [Premises for the ex-Active Service Men's Association Club have been secured in Queen's Road, above the entrance to the Kowloon Theatre, which will be disposed of. Hon. Mr. A. Thre are four rooms, which will G. Stephen and Mr. D. G. M. afford accommodation for brilliant Bernard have kindly consented to room reading room, and for music act as trustees, and the capital sum, and each. Sir Paul Chater will be paid over to them at once as furnishing the Club, quite apart from the gift of $50,000.]

CALICO DANCE

KOWLOON THEATRE'S COMING ATTRACTION.

The hoarding at the foot of Flower Street displayed a notice this morning announcing a calico dance, for the Kowloon Theatre on Tuesday evening. Several people having inquired just exactly what is a calico dance, it was learned that the dancers are expected to come dressed in white drill or a similar material—a sound suggestion to the many enthusiasts who find the advent of summer no bar to the enjoyment of their favourite pastime. As a special attraction, Indian Jack who has lately been seen riding through the streets in full nature costume, will give an exhibition of handling a 17-foot stockwhip, lariat and rope.

Measures have been taken to prevent a repetition of the oversight which rather marred his previous performance in the Kowloon Theatre on the occasion of the fancy dress ball, when the extremely smooth surface of the floor gave his rope no grip. With this necessary change made, a very interesting exhibition should result.

"JUSTICE, PUBLIC SERVICE"

HONGKONG, SATURDAY, MAY 13, 1922.

ADVERSARIA.

Not from some in the name of GOODNESS, pamphlet, not from any rationalistic criticism, but from an evangelical sermon preached on Sunday last, I abstract these words:

"There are men now living whose hands hold their children's fingers in a candle flame to inspire them with fear of hell."

Prima facie, as the lawyers say, that seems to me another count in the indictment of superstition, a dreadful evidence of what it does to decent people whose only fault is ignorance and a shrinking from truth. A superstitious magistrate would probably convict such a mother, at the instance of the N.S.P.C.C. Yet she is a good mother, a most devoted mother according to her lights, and it seems to me acting logically on her beliefs.

Do not assume that
IT IS NOT I'm thinking supersti-CONFINED tion has its only home CHAPLAIN in the chapels of the unco guid. Far from that am I. It is as human and as common as a cold in the head. The "spiritualists" in spite of all jeering are proving that, and proving that the sucker census shows no numerical diminution. There are lots of professed "rationalists" who cannot sit thirteen at table without remarking it, and who always "touch wood" for an absit omen. The dears! It would be enough to touch their own craniums. Perhaps the worst and the wickedest superstitionists are the pseudo-scientists, especially the medicine men who believe in inoculation as their predecessors used to believe in bleeding. As a commonsensible M. D. writes in Truth:

"The history of medicine is largely the history of changing medical fashions. We have universal bleeding at one time; mercurialisation at another; huge doses of alcohol for fevers at another. This characteristic of ever-changing fashions was ac-knowledgeed by the British Medical Journal more than eleven years ago in the words:—

Remedies and modes of treatment, like systems of philosophy and fashions in dress, have their little day and cease to be. Back numbers are the grave-yards of dead theories of which the various forms of quackery are the ghosts."

We may not liken the HELL OR anti-typhoid inoculators TYPHOID to the hell-centring mother, firstly, because there is such a thing as typhoid, and secondly, because burning the baby's fingers would certainly fix an idea in its mind for keeps. There is much evidence that anti-typhoid inoculation did harm, and none at all that it ever did good. But the supersti-tiousness of the inoculators endures as the conduct of the baby burner did for a like reason, that its victims were as helpless as babies. They were soldiers, who are not allowed to "reason why." Theirs is to be injected and die. You may tell me that it was optional, that some soldiers who refused consent were not inoculated. As to that, Dr. Walter R. Hadwen tells us that "They were put for lengthened periods upon duties usually performed by detachments, such as cleaning up lavatories.

All kinds of fatigue duties, without leave, and many other punishments were resorted to in order to break the will of some of the most intelligent men who entered the British Army."

It didn't pay to refuse consent, and most soldiers would notice that and be compliant. Even then, they jumped from frying pan to fire.

"The whole system of IN BRIEF inoculation is built up," he says, "upon imagination and false and superstitious theories; and it is steeped from foundation to summit in commercial interests." He says no official statistics associated with it are trustworthy.
"The endeavour to save the face of the inoculation fetish at all costs—and at the same time the face of the men whose reputations (and even incomes) depend upon its 'success'—brushes every scientific consideration aside." He gives his own statistics and arguments which convince me (until someone proves him a liar) that far too many of our brave lads were sacrificed to this fad. I am always very sorry for soldiers. I have previously given some of my reasons. This is another.
I pity them and I write in order to help to create a public opinion that will help them. There is not a lavendered life—not all beer and skittles.

What the soldier said
may not be evidence, but it is, I trust, readable. Do you recall it?
He said: "Don't thee go for a soldier, lad. I'll tell thee what happened to me. They gave me the shilling, they gave me the clobber, and they gave me a number. Then at church parade, when the chaplain sings out my number, and says 'Art thou weary, art thou languid,' and I ups and says 'Yes, governor,' they gives me six weeks c. b."

I like the French way of numbering the hours. I think 19 o'clock much more scientific and efficient and exact than 7 p.m. In this case brevity is not only the soul of wit. It is also the soul of precision.
"On the 10th inst at 12 p.m." Who is over sure what that means, whether it is noon on the 10th or midnight on the eve of the 11th? But 24 o'clock or 12 o'clock on the 10th cannot be matter for doubt. So far so good.
But this kind of common sense only works out right, like Christianity, when enough people practise it. One Christian in a crowd of sinners gets the worst of it. At least, he hardly counts. So with scientific timereckoning. When there seemed a chance of our adopting it, Mr. Wolfe of the Police took the chance and decided to head the procession. He issued a please, still in force, which compelled the police to reckon that way. There is the only department that does, and it must make them uncomfortable at times. Say they write to the P. W. D. of an occurrence at 13 o'clock.

In writing back the P. W. D. will translate it into 1 p.m. And so they go on. I'd like the other departments to come into line with the police, but if they will not, then it seems to me the police should go back to the old system, for the sake of uniformity.
What's a policeman without his uniform?

I saw it stated within the last few days that the Kowloon residents had just learned from the K. R. A. correspondence, that Kowloon is to have its trams. The China Mail announced it over three months ago.

When a man with a monocle was "up" for getting drinks at the King Edward Hotel without paying for them, the manager of the hotel talked of his bad language, although he wasn't charged with that.
And something was said about the boy offering the man a shirt to sign.
I thought we had a law which forbids hotels to take shirts for drinks. What about it?

It's not true that a CORRECTIONS certain Hotel Company has bought the Peak Trams and the Star Ferries in order to connect their interests; but rumour has it they may charter the British and American navies to transport their customers between ports.

Life were less amusing
if it had fewer queer-nesses. Have you noticed how queer it is that in any roomful of men, the one who always takes the conspicuous position in the middle and strikes an attitude is always the smallest there, and the quickest looking. The other assumes sort of shyly shrink into wall-fower positions; but the slightest one, who may have epinaker-ears, or a stomach like a dogbox, or whiskers like a cast-of heartbrush, or a face like a plate of fried eggs, is the homo-island entirely surrounded by modesty.

Householders in the eastern part of the Colony are concerned about a new variety of petty larceny which has begun. Name plates on their doors are being unscrewed and taken away by some person or persons unknown. As the intrinsic value of these name plates is so small, they suspect kleptomania.
It has even been surmised that the culprits must be Europeans. If so, and their identity be discovered, there may be a scandalous sequel which they will not relish.

There was sungare,
and there was the sea and the hills, yet we talked of communism. Men are like that. Put them in a monastery and they will talk of women, if only to denounce them.
Wreck them on a desert island and they will talk of Piccadilly and theatres. So on this hill path, with the ocean to look at, and the sun to feel, we talked of communism. He said—this very brainy man sitting by me—that the swart theory of Karl Marx is all bosh. "Have you really read Marx?" I asked him, and he confessed that he had not. "Nor have I," said I, "and I never intend to.
So we are in the first class, most appropriate, and entirely usual position in which to argue about him.
You say he has some theory about a classwar, and you quote some M. P. or other to show that such a thing as a classwar cannot be. To me that is silly. Classwar is not a theory; it is a fact. It is also nothing new. There are long spells of class peace, as in the other kind of war and peace, but class war returns, and have done so for ages, and is even more inevitable than the other kind of war."

As usual, he had to be personal. "But you,"
he said, "are a Socialist." "Only as you yourself are," I replied. "Under Socialistic laws we are all Socialists, but I personally dislike it, and would be glad to see all our Socialistic laws repealed, and our Socialistic legislators put where they could do no more mischief. Chesterton points out that the Condition has legally established every bad feature of Socialism, while leaving out all the potentially good ones. All paternal legislation is Socialism. I do like any government that meddles with my purely personal habits which is the central idea of socialism, to rule a people as a governess rules a nursery. Ours is already a partly communistic government, too, for you cannot claim that private property is much safer with them than it is in Russia." Whereupon he said that I was tedious, and we returned to our walk. The least offending, for they sometimes accuse me of being tedious. Sometimes they say "Now you are leg pulling," which is a misleading reply to a serious proposition.

Shaw and Chesterton
must often be annoyed in that way, I imagine. They are both very serious men with a sense of humour, consequently every chump who lacks both seriousness and humour, but is firm stanced in conventional notions of things suspects them of clowning whenever they try to teach him. Here is a serious bit of Chesterton, from his new book: "A little while ago two tramps were summoned before a magistrate, charged with sleeping in the open air when they had nowhere else to sleep. Each of them eagerly produced about two pence, to prove that they could have got a bed, but deliberately didn't.
To which the policeman replied that twopence would not have got them a bed; that they could not possibly have got a bed; and therefore (argued that thoughtful officer) they ought to be punished for not getting one. The intelligent magistrate was much struck with the argument; and proceeded to imprison these two men for not doing a thing they could not do. But he was careful to explain that if they had slept needlessly and in wanton lawlessness, they would have left the court without a stain on their character; but as they could not avoid it, they were very much to blame. These things are being done in every part of England every day.
They have their parallels in every daily paper; but they have no parallel in any other earthly people or period, except in that insane command to make bricks without straw, which brought down all the plagues of Egypt. For the common historical joke about Henry VIII hanging a man for being Catholic and burning him for being Protestant is a symbolic joke only. The sceptic in the Tudor time could do something; he could always agree with Henry VIII. The desperate man to-day can do nothing.
For you cannot agree with a maniac who sits on the bench with the straws sticking out of his hair and says "Procure threepence from nowhere and I will give you leave to do without it."

That is serious argument, no seriously meant. If you consider the picture of the magistrate with the straws less sober than it might be, I assure you it is merely the vivid method of a serious expounder who quite honestly considers the magistrate an imbecile; and I agree with him. I did not so much as smile when I read that passage I have copied out for you. I frowned.
I recognized the deadly truth of it.
I am by profession a tramp myself, and have lived for whole seasons on the road. One summer in England I carried a small tent of my own design and slept in it night after night on the road side, being careful never to put it where it could annoy traffic.
Knowing as a fact of experience what we do not usually admit in print, that there is one law for one class and another for the other, I took precautions to establish, in case of need, my claim to belong to the privileged class. I included a monocle in my baggage. About 3 a.m. one time I was roused from a good sleep in a grassy hollow quite six or seven yards away from the highway. "Nah then," a constantly voice was roaring. "Out of that. Git a move on. Can't have your sort here." Screwing the monocle into position, and crawling out so as to enter the light of his bull's-eye. I spoke in an affected voice which I meant him to recognize as the Oxford accent. "Ofceah! What evah is—ah the metah! Why do you presume to distab me in this very wude mannah?" He backed off, saluting and apologizing.

You realize, I hope, what the game is behind this extraordinary law?
They want all the poor idlers to go to work to help some rich man to more profit, but they do not desire to unhitch with an idle class that has, they think, the right to idle.

It is true that a man must work or starve,
OR but not true that it STARVE his duty to work industriously and regularly for the benefit of his employer after he has earned his own needs. It is not customary to admit it, but most of these tramps do work. They work at odd jobs or odd days until they have accumulated enough for their simple wants. They buy the luxury of idling, of travel, and of freedom (from all bossing but that of police and magistrate) by simplifying their wants. If they wanted a bed at the Savoy they would have to work for that like they. So they cut out the Savoy. Now, a man who can and does simplify his wants as they do is entitled to the fullest freedom, and this persecution by the law is unfair.

It is quite clear to me that "blessed are the poor" meant these poor at wanting, these who simplify their wants. The poorest of the poor I define as those who have much larger desires than means to attain them. I consider a man with £1000 a year a poor man if he is all the time yearning for things that would cost £2000.

I hold him truly rich who has a dollar a day, if the attainment of his wants costs him but that dollar. If Diogenes is content with his tub, it is wicked for the law to try to drag him into drudgery to earn a back room in some slum.
The law never owns up that it is working for the mere profiteer and luxury craver who is to employ him. It pretends that its concern is the man's own good. I think that hypocrisy, and I needn't say more about hypocrisy. But assume that I am wrong, and that the law is sincere. Then still I say that the law is wrong. Any law that tries to do me good, in violence to my own small wants and inclinations, that tries to "uplift" me from contemptment to discontentment, I call a Socialistic law, and the meddlesome idiot who made it the rankest kind of a Socialist. I am, in short, English, and I value my freedom, to which I was bred. Thus it leaks out that I have escaped from the proletariat, if I ever belonged to it, because not even the English proletariat is bred to freedom. It is bred to servility, and that is why the policeman saluted a monocle and a bleating voice. To talk like this, says my friend, is to talk like a Bolshevik! I really cannot understand how men can miss the point so blatantly. The 55 per cent. of Coalition Bolshevism that I am deploring and denouncing in England is represented by 100 per cent. in Russia, where I would scarcely last a day, unless it were a dumb day. I do not know what label I should bear, but I am no Bolshevik, no communist, no socialist. The only State to which I can be loyal, and feel loyal, is the State that interferes as little as possible with the liberty of the subject. Where does it live, that I may go at once and be naturalized?

LOCAL AND GENERAL.

Among the passengers who arrived by the "Empress of Asia" yesterday was Sir Wilfred Peel.

Command Orders note that "it has been brought to notice that certain officers and other ranks are wearing hats of a civilian pattern when in uniform," and add that "this habit must cease forthwith."

Capt. J. A. N. Noel has been granted leave from May 4 to August 15 for the purpose of proceeding to Tientsin and Capt. C. S. Bodwell from June to September, to visit North China, Mongolia and Manchuria.

Major-General Sir John Fowler and Lady Fowler returned to the Colony from Manila by the "Empress of Asia" yesterday. Captain C. S.
Fisher and Captain R. Neville returned by the same steamer. Mr. J. E. H.
Bibby and Mr. Dent, members of the Hongkong polo team, are extending their stay in Manila.

Mr. Henry Helsen, a Danish journalist attached to the staff of the Berlingske Tidende, met with a serious accident on April 21.
He left Bangkok by rail for Denchak, with the intention of travelling from Phrae through Ching Rai, the Shan States, Yunnan, and Kwangsi to the West River and Canton. He was brought back to Bangkok on May 1, with a broken leg, having been thrown from a pony at Phrae, and is now in hospital.

In connection with the Tennis Courts at Happy Valley, Command Orders state that the Hongkong Golf Club have kindly consented to alter the "tees" of the 5 and 6 holes, thereby minimising any chance of accident. It is hoped that this concession of the Golf Club will be appreciated by tennis players, especially when walking to and from the roads to the courts. It is also pointed out that spectators and children should keep clear of the Golf Course as far as possible and keep in the proximity of the tent, which is to be pitched on the further side of the courts.

Before Mr. J. B. Wood, Paines Judge, in the Summary Court yesterday afternoon, Madame Flint sued an ex-employee, Kung Hum, for $38.05, the balance due in respect of money advanced. Mr. F. X. D'Almada, appeared for the plaintiff. Defendant, who admitted the debt, was not legally represented. Judgment having been given for Madame Flint, Mr.
D'Almada said that when defendant was working for plaintiff he was also working for Madame Flint's head dressmaker, who was doing outside work. Madame Flint objected to the head dressmaker doing that outside work because she was taking away custom which would otherwise come to plaintiff. His Honour asked what Mr. D'Almada wanted. Mr.
D'Almada:—I want him to admit that, because I want to use his evidence afterwards. His Honour:— Then you can see him outside.

SHANGHAI SHIPPING SUIT.

A GUILD CASE.

[China Mail Special.]

SHANGHAI, May 13.

A test case of great interest to shipping was heard to-day in the British court. The plaintiffs were the China Coast Officers' Guild, and the defendants the San Peh Shipping Company. The case arises out of an agreement signed in Hongkong in March 1920 referring certain differences regarding salaries to arbitration. Plaintiffs claim that the defendants have broken the arbitrators' award and engaged numerous masters and officers at reduced pay.
They pray for an order for the specific performance and enforcement of the award.

CORRESPONDENCE.

SCENES AT SHUICHOW.

[To the Editor of the "China Mail."]

Dear Sir,—In the following letter I have made no attempt to dwell either on the Political or Military Situation, but merely wish your readers to know of the appalling state of affairs which exist in the city which is at present the Military Headquarters of Dr. Sun Yat Sen's Southern Expedition.

The writer has been at Shuichow for the last two days and has had ample opportunity of obtaining firsthand evidence.

The whole city is closed from a business point of view, every business house and private dwelling being full of soldiers. Meat and vegetables are almost unobtainable, while the price of rice which is now extremely scarce is as much as 7 catties to the dollar, whereas before the arrival of this military rabble it ranged between 12 and 14 catties to a dollar.

It is estimated that between fifteen and twenty thousand troops are billeted on the city, the normal population of which is about 30,000. More troops arrive daily from the direction of Canton while others are being sent up the North River to Nanking in which district the first brush with the enemy is reported to have taken place. The soldiers themselves are hardly recognisable as such, many of them being without arms and a large percentage with their uniforms in rags. Little or no discipline exists, gambling and opium smoking are rife.

The writer was particularly amused by seeing fire gambling tables (Fantan etc.) in full swing within a few hundred yards of President Sun's Yamen.
Gambling houses are to be seen all over the city, most of which are owned and run by the soldiers with the full knowledge of their commanding officers, who are either afraid or too lax to put a stop to it.

It would seem incredible that Dr.
Sun is ignorant of this state of affairs and it is the opinion of many that he has not sufficient control to prevent it.

Few civilians are to be seen in the streets due to the fact that patrols of soldiers commandeer the people for coolie transport. The troops have already collected upwards of 4,000 men and women for this purpose who are made to carry heavy weights enormous distances in the wake of the expedition. Not only is this the case in the city but troops are sent out to the surrounding villages to round up the country farmers and their families in order to transport the military supplies. It is really pitiable to see the citizens of a peaceful country being beaten and bullied by no better than a horde of brigands.

It seems extremely sad that the leaders of an expedition, which is about to attempt the salvation of China, should start by snatching their eyes to the fact that their own soldiers indulge freely in gambling, opium smoking, and every known vice.

Yours etc.

GREAT HIGHWAY.

HONGKONG AND CANTON.

HUGE UNDERTAKING BEGUN.

The vision of a great highway between Hongkong and Canton is materializing. Already the work has begun and within the next few years the new link between the two most important commercial centres in South China will be completed, its 172 miles ready for through traffic, and the further enterprise that will lead to a tramway or motor bus service over the route.

This great project was first made known to the public in a special article written for the China Mail's 76th Anniversary Souvenir number by Mr. H. E. Goldsmith who has charge of the Colony's roads. He expressed the opinion that the construction of a great trunk highway between Hongkong and Canton would be of vast commercial benefit to the two cities and incidentally to the whole of China. His address to the Municipal Council of Canton, in December last, wherein he outlined the scheme for this huge undertaking, has been translated and circulated among the Chinese, who have evidently evinced so great an interest in the scheme as to be ready to make it an established fact with as little delay as possible.

Below we give a few extracts of the scheme as laid before the Council in the above mentioned address:

The possibility of connecting Canton with Hongkong by means of a great trunk highway will, I feel sure, commend itself to your serious consideration, for it will not only enhance the prosperity of both cities but in addition will open in your country immense areas of undeveloped land; and, if for no other reason, such a road is of vital importance to China. It is unnecessary for me to draw your attention to the congested state of both Canton and Hongkong, and I am assured that any scheme for relieving the crowded residential areas as well as business portions of two cities cannot fail to commend itself to you.

All the large and important cities of the world have gradually become linked up with neighbouring towns of former little importance. In the course of time these small towns became suburbs of the great cities, eventually becoming part and parcel of the mother city and participating in her prosperity. This can only be possible where there is easy means of communication with outlying districts. Telegraph and telephone are of great value in this direction but the only adequate means of joining up districts is by the formation of good roadways.

The growth of motor traffic has increased so rapidly during the last decade that it has become of the utmost importance that good roads of sufficient strength to carry the heaviest motor traffic should be constructed; and I think you will agree with me that a good motor road is probably a better producer of revenue than a railroad. To condense all this to a sound financial basis you will naturally ask what would be the commercial and industrial benefit from the road connecting Canton with Hongkong.

Vast areas of agricultural and mineral wealth of immense marketable value are at present lying dormant owing to the inadequate means of transporting quickly the valuable produce which could be obtained from them. As a means of transport a roadway is far superior to either rail or sea as it saves multiple handling of merchandise and goods can be conveyed to market with greater dispatch.

The opening up of outlying districts would relieve residential congestion (and this from the point of view of health is worth consideration), and provide fresh areas for building purposes. The building of such a road as I propose would give employment to numbers of people, who perhaps at present, have scanty means of livelihood.

An additional asset would be its attraction as a lengthy motor trip for tourists, the spending of whose wealth would be of direct benefit to the inhabitants of the districts through which it passed.

I would like also to bring to your notice the possibility of constructing subsidiary roads from the main road to the existing railroad. These again would traverse and open up large agricultural districts. The suggested

STOLEN CLOTH.

CHINESE CHARGED WITH RECEIVING.

Before Magistrate Fraser yesterday afternoon, a Chinese youth was charged on remand with having unlawfully received two pieces of woollen cloth worth $46.30, stolen from Messrs Hiptools and Co's store, D'Aguilar Street. The defendant was further charged with having pawned the property without the authority of the owner.

Mr. Hiptool said that he first discovered the theft of May 5 when he found detached private marks which he fixed to his cloth when he took stock last January. Investigations resulted in the discovery that many rolls of cloth had been reduced in length by as many as 30 yards in some cases, the cutting apparently not being done by an expert as was shown by the jagged ends. Defendant had visited his shop several times previously.

Cross-examined at length by Mr. A. E. Hall for the defence, the witness said that he identified the cloth found on defendant as part of a purchase which he made in Bombay two years ago. He had during the two years sold but three yards of such cloth. During the cross-examination witness waived the allegation that he had seen the accused in his shop before. The case was adjourned until Monday.

HAMMER ASSAULT.

PEDESTRIAN SET UPON BY STRANGER.

While walking in Leasing Street yesterday afternoon, a Chinese was suddenly attacked from behind by an unknown man with a hammer. Receiving severe injuries to his head he had to go to hospital. He says his assailant is a stranger, and he is unable to offer any reason for the assault.

CHAN PING-SANG'S ARREST.

DEPORTATION PROCEEDINGS PENDING.

Chan Ping-sang, former president of the Chinese Seamen's Union, who was recently pardoned by Dr. Sun Yat-sen on a sentence of 12 years imprisonment for murdering his wife in Canton was arrested at the local Union headquarters on Thursday afternoon for deportation as an "undesirable." It is understood that no charge is being prepared against the arrested man which would necessitate his appearance before a Magistrate. On the other hand, it is stated that the Union is engaging legal assistance for their late leader, in which case "developments" may be expected in the form of habeas corpus proceedings.

Interviewed this morning by a China Mail reporter, Union officials said they had nothing to report. Their former leader had been arrested and they were still awaiting information from the police station. When they knew definitely what further action the police were taking they would hold a meeting to discuss the matter.

THE WALKING STICK.

Harry's father had a stick of which he was very fond. It was quite a plain stick of ash wood but very strong and when he went for long walks in the country he always took it with him and he told Harry that he had had it for some years.

One summer they all went to stay at Conway in North Wales, Harry and his mother and father and of course the walking stick as well. They had rooms in a little grey stone Welsh house on the banks of a big river and every day whenever it was fine they took their tea and sometimes dinner too and visited all the beautiful places around.

"This is where Daddy and I came some years ago just after we were married Harry," his mother told him. "And it was here that he bought the walking stick of which he is so fond."

"Was I there too?" asked Harry but she answered that he had not even been thought of then.

One day they went by train to a place called Camarvon where there was a wonderful old castle and when they came back in the evening Harry was very tired and he had his supper quickly and jumped into bed and was soon fast asleep.

The house was still when he awoke some time later and it was dark, only a streak of moonlight shone between the Venetian blinds on to his bed.

"I wonder what made me wake up," said Harry to himself and then, as he sat up in bed, he heard a faint bump, bump all along the passage underneath his room.

He sprang out of bed and ran quickly downstairs in his bare feet, when a strange sight met his eyes. The front door was open and his father's favourite walking stick, which was leaning against the wall, was just going out.

"I must see where it is going," muttered Harry, who could hardly believe his eyes and, still in his unslipped feet and sleeping suit, he crept after it, shutting the door gently behind him.

There was no sign of life in the village street and the walking stick kept to the middle of the road, tapping its way along.

"It seems to know where it is going," thought Harry as he watched it turn one corner then another, until at last it came to a path across a field which led to a wood, where old ash and oak trees grew side by side. Straight into the wood it plunged and now it was going so fast that Harry found it difficult to keep up with it. And then he was running so quickly that he did not look where he was going and he fell over the root of a tree. When he sat up again the walking stick had disappeared but he could hear someone on the other side of the tree talking loudly. He got up and peeped round the big tree trunk and there he saw it standing by an old ash tree talking rapidly and all the branches of the ash tree were bending down to hear it.

The knob of the stick certainly looked like a head and there was a knot in the wood which appeared to be its mouth which opened and shut with a snap like a dry twig cracking. This is what it was saying:—

"I never thought dear father that I should see you again, or you my brothers and sisters after all these years. (And at this some of the branches stretched out and patted it gently on the head and the aged tree trunk creaked and groaned). It does seem a long time since I left you," it went on, "And you may like to hear what has been happening to me. I have a kind master who never forgets to take me with him and never once has he lost me or left me behind anywhere. He loves me dearly and we all go round the world together." (At this the branches shook as if they did not believe him) but it continued, "Yes I have been everywhere, right up to the north of Scotland, in Cornwall and Sussex and Norfolk and in the very middle of England in a place called the Black Country where everything is grimy and the towns are full of factories and smoking chimneys and there were very few nice walks where we could go."

"I must think then that England and Scotland are the whole world," muttered Harry to himself. "I had such an adventure once," said the stick, "We were walking across a lonely common, my master and I. He was looking at the sunset and saying to himself some stuff which he calls poetry which he sends to newspapers and so gets money for himself and his family. Suddenly a tramp sprang up from behind a gorse bush and seized my master's gold watch and chain and ran off quickly. We followed quickly and as my master can run like a hare we soon caught him up. Then I gave the robber such a crack on his arm that he dropped the watch and chain and made off. We did not follow him as my master does not like having to send people to prison and is not as hard as I am. Do you not wish dear father and brothers," it went on, "That you could go out and see the world as I do!"

And at this the branches waved up and down wildly as though nodding their heads and the hoary trunk gave several loud cracks.

"And now I must go back again," continued the walking stick, "We have gone many miles to-day and to-morrow I hear we are off again for a whole day picnic so I must rest a bit. Good-bye my dear family, I will come and see you again," and it waved to the ash tree vigorously and then hopped off once more.

Harry scrambled after it through the bushes and along the path over the field, down the village street and in at the front door, which opened to them as if by magic.

The walking stick with a tired sigh leapt into its corner in the hat stand and did not even notice Harry as he crept by and up to bed.

The next night Harry meant to go into the wood again but he slept too hard and did not wake up till the sun was rising and, as they went back home that day, he never knew whether or not the walking stick had visited his family once more.

Dear Peter Pan.—For not thanking you earlier, I received a severe dressing from mother. She said that I had no manners, and that you would be much annoyed at my behaviour. I am sincerely repentant.

The pen I am using to write you this letter is the same silver pen you gave me as a consolation prize for my funny drawing. I shall keep it carefully so that in future when you offer prizes for another competition I can use it to bring me luck again.

HAINAN NEWS.

HIGHWAY ROBBERY INCREASES.

(From Our Own Correspondent.)

Kunming, May 8.

A rather outstanding and derogatory commentary on the present administration of the island is the marked increase of highway robbery and market looting between this place and Kweichow and in the Yün Sio district to the east. A large and well organized gang seems to be operating within ten or fifteen miles to the south and east of this prefectural city. Lim Ko district city is also said to be in a disturbed condition.

The head Yün Sio robber has sent a letter to the military official, General Teng Yün Fo inviting him to vacate his vamen, so that the robber chief, can be the main authority.

ANTI-CHRISTIAN MOVEMENT. The much talked of Anti Christian Society has made its appearance in the government schools of this city. The Provincial Middle School formed a society first and issued a hand-bill condemning Christianity in about the same terms as did the students of Peking. Then the Normal Middle School and the District Middle School took it up and a second paper was issued. This accused the American missionaries of having undue influence with the natives and of conspiring to sell Hainan to the Japanese. The shopkeepers of Hoihow have little sympathy with this movement because of the resentment stirred up by the Students' Union boycott of Japanese goods.

PERSONALIA.

Mr. T. Nelson of Canton has recently arrived as Commissioner of Customs in Hoihow, succeeding Mr. Tichen, who has been transferred to Hang Kow. Five new foreign tide-waiters are due to take up their duties here. The Customs staff is to build extensive new quarters and a new Customs house is to be constructed.

The Hainan members of the National Christian Conference which is now meeting in Shanghai consists of the Rev. J. P. Steiner of Nodosa, Miss K. L. Schaeffer of Kachek, Mr. Feng Oang Sin of Kachek and Mr. Chen Tseng Ki of Hoihow.

Dr. Mary Niles, well known missionary worker of Canton (School for the blind) arrived per s.s. "Lok Sang" on May 4 for a visit with her friends Dr. and Mrs. H. M. McCandless of Hoihow.

Mrs. J. T. Steiner, and two children departed for Hongkong per s.s. "King Yuan" on May 4. The "King Yuan" is a new China Navigation steamer just out from England. It is well supplied with cabins which are equipped with electric lights, heat and fan. Such things are innovations indeed among most of the vessels touching at Hoihow.

There was born to Rev. and Mrs. P. C. Melrose on May 4, a daughter, Margaret Jean.

BANK'S PISTOL RANGE.

CLERKS TAUGHT TO SHOOT BANDITS.

In consequence of the alarming increase in the number of robberies from bank and other messengers carrying large sums of money in New York City, permission was granted to the Title Guarantee and Trust Company, a large banking house to install a revolver range on the premises, in which the staff can be trained in revolver shooting.

According to figures published in the New York World, 85 "hold-ups" have occurred in New York during the last 70 days, and the bandits' loot during this time is estimated at $250,000.

STRANGE DEATH.

JAPANESE GIRL WHO READ TRAGIC NOVELS.

Mr. R. E. Lindsall, as Coroner, assisted by Mr. Kuga, the Japanese Vice-Consul, held an enquiry yesterday afternoon into the circumstances attending the death of a 14-year old Japanese girl named Huroko Ishiyama, whose body was recovered from the harbour by the Water Police in the vicinity of the Royal Hongkong Yacht Club, North Point, on May 5.

The first witness called was Dr. J. T. Smalley, the Government Medical Officer in Kowloon, who said that on May 5 he held a post-mortem examination on the body of the deceased at the Kowloon mortuary. The girl's body, he said, was bound up in a peculiar way. She was fully dressed but round her thighs a piece of cloth was tightly bound, whilst another piece was wound round her outer garments between the hips and the shoulders. Another piece, was tied round the girl's legs about seven inches above the knees. Round her neck, in a double turn, was a piece of red cloth; this was tied in front. The body showed signs of having been in the water. Death was due to drowning and not to strangulation. In his opinion the girl had attempted to commit suicide by tying herself up and finding that this failed, threw herself into the water.

Mr. Taku Taro Ishiyama, the proprietor of the Iroko Hotel, Hoihow Lane, was then called. He last saw her alive shortly after 6 p.m., on May 4, when she went out to post a letter. As she failed to return at 7 p.m., he went out to search for her. Unsuccessful, he sent his brother-in-law, Mr. Hakeika Iroko, to report the matter to the police. On the following day he received a telephone message from the Japanese Consul as the result of which he went to the Kowloon mortuary and there identified the dead body of the girl. The witness could not suggest any reason why the girl should have committed suicide. "She had been in the habit of reading novels unfit for young people," he added.

The Coroner enquired if the girl were like any other girls of her age, and the witness replied that she "talked like an old woman." The witness added that to his knowledge the girl did not have any love affair.

Replying to the Vice-Consul, the witness said that the girl was his adopted daughter and had been in his household for five or six years.

Mr. Hakeika Iroko, the girl's uncle, said that he searched for her until 2 or 3 in the morning.

The Coroner: Supposing the girl had committed suicide, can you give any reason why she should have done so?

The witness: As I think, I told the Water Police, she was too fond of reading tragic novels, which made her hysterical.

The Coroner: What do you mean by hysterical?—She was very fond of going to the hillsides to read and would come back crying.

But that does not account for her action in committing suicide?—She said she was very tired of the world.

Oh! did she—at that age; were your sister and her husband good to her?—Yes.

After a short adjournment, the Coroner said to the Japanese interpreter: Tell the deceased's father that the Japanese Consul and I are satisfied that it is a case of suicide whilst in a fit of temporary insanity, and I will record a verdict to that effect.

CROUP.

This disease is so dangerous and so rapid in its development that every mother of young children should be prepared for it. It is very risky to wait until the attack of croup appears and then send for medicine and let the child suffer until it can be obtained. Chamberlain's Cough Remedy is prompt and effective and has never been known to fail in any case. Always have a bottle in the home. For sale by all Chemists and Storekeepers.

shoppers and dancers, there is immediate relief from corn pain and a quick end for any corn or callus.
"Get-It" is applied in a second or third. There is no work, no troublesome plasters, no wrapping of corns, no removal of the corn in a week. That is all. As easy to do as signing your name. The corn comes from the true flesh and you peel it right off with your fingers while you wonder at the skin and smile. That is why "Get-It" is the biggest selling corn remedy in the world today.
